ADM said yesterday that Sun Capital's offer, which values the company at about $202.9 million, was accepted. Sun Capital declined to comment. The company's 16 locations employ 400 people. ADM said it will be pursuing a refinancing of its debt in due course, which may include some equity investment. "We will continue to work with Sun Capital Partners through the transition," ADM founder and CEO Regina Mosley said in a statement. "We remain committed to providing the best floral experience for our customers with highly experienced and dedicated associates. We are grateful for their support throughout the company's history." Floral Market said in a statement that it will remain a wholly owned subsidiary of the retailer. FlowerProduction.com reported yesterday that fresh and floral fulfillment-services company TFS Group had withdrawn a bid to purchase a majority stake in ADM. Floral Market launched in 1987 and is one of two major domestic online-only florists.The company said it operates 1,200 stores in North America and ships to 98 percent of the contiguous U.S. and most of Canada. ADM also offers floral design and manufacturing services. "We've seen the growth of the company as a whole," ADM CEO Mark Cervino told BW last year. "The strength of the organization and what we're able to do with our asset and our brand and our expertise has really taken off. The company has seen growth in lots of areas. "We've had a really good run," C
