Q: Lockscreen camera permissions on android I'm working on a project that has a phonegap-based webapp using cordova. The webapp is using the lockscreen camera. However, sometimes the default camera permission dialog pops out and the user has to give permission. I'm curious if android has a preference setting that will completely block camera permissions until the user manually allows it? At the moment, the user has to tap allow for the permission every time and this is annoying. A: I'm not sure if there is a preference or not, but if the user has already given permission once, the app cannot request for the same permission twice. As for why this is, I can't find the source right now but I was told by some people who work with the Android security team. Q: TYPO3 Fluid: Change a link like "Get More" in a c-menu I have a c-menu, which has some links, like "Get More", "About" and so on. In the standard TYPO3-installation the source-code looks like this: Link Link Link Now i want to replace the "Link"-Text with "Get More". The menu is created with Fluid and cMenu. If I try: `{% for menu in cObject.menu.settings.showMenuItems.children %} {{ menu.text`
