The House Health and Welfare Committee passed House Bill 140 by a 6-3 vote along party lines. The bill would allow doctors to prescribe drugs to help terminally ill patients die. Those who take the drugs would be allowed to self-administer the drugs, but medical professionals would be allowed to provide guidance. ADVERTISEMENT The bill's sponsor, Republican Rep. Mary Salo, said the measure is needed to allow patients to hasten their own deaths when facing severe and irreversible health issues such as advanced dementia and amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), also known as Lou Gehrig's disease. Opponents say the bill is a step toward legalizing assisted suicide. "Assisted suicide is wrong," Republican Rep. Dan Ruckelshaus told the Associated Press. "This legislation is the basis of
